PUBLISH MAGAZINE.

One of the English classes at West Tennessee Normal has published a magazine called "Southerner Classics," which is the last act of the class before the closing of school. The publication was the aim of the class all through the year, and all of the pupils worked with this aim in mind. The magazine is a creditable piece of work, and fully comes up to the expectations of all concerned.

"The Little Red Schoolhouse in the Valley"

AND

The Little White Church On the Hill"

Will be the theme of the sermon by William E. Clark, at the UNITARIAN Church services in

THE MAJESTIC, SUNDAY, AT 11 A.M.

In a postlude to the sermon Mr. Clark will speak briefly of "O. K. Houck—the Lifting Christian"—not in a sectarian sense, but as taught by Jew and Gentile and as lived by the great and good of every race and clime.

THE Idlewild Church ORGANIZATION

A local church is an organization. As a company of believers, united in a common service, it renders a definite mission to men in the name of its great Head.

The Idlewild Church is such a company, and functions through various departments, thereby meeting the needs which arise. It has a twofold body of office-bearers—elders and deacons—composed of Christian business men. It has a large and well-equipped Sunday school. The women of the congregation have their auxiliary, and there are four societies for young people, including Christian Endeavor. Nothing is lacking in the completion of the program for up-to-date service. There is, moreover, opportunity for definite work for every member of the congregation.

Handwork Dominates

In the building of the Jackson Six, handwork is used wherever it is superior to machine work. We build fewer cars, but we make them better. That is why the Jackson has expressed for over 16 years those same old-time characteristics of honesty and sturdiness typical of the man history so reverently called "Old Hickory."

Character is inbuilt by hand by artisans long trained in Jackson standards. Mechanical units of the highest acknowledged standards are individually built in and tested; bodies are singly built on the chassis, each part separately molded, cut and fitted by hand; lumber is of A-1 quality; metal shells are individually cut; upholstery is genuine leather, with hair stuffing; tops are hand tailored and hand fitted, etc. Jackson quality always stays in a Jackson because it is part and parcel of it.
